

For one moment, think what it would be like to lose your independence.

It's hard to imagine the difficulties that someone older, frail, or blind faces when shopping. We take for granted reading labels, lifting our groceries, or even getting to the store. But for many, these are daunting tasks. Fortunately, there is Joe who is happy helping others with their shopping...and happy helping these people to live independently.

Joe goes to the stores with his care receivers, helps them choose their groceries, carries their bags, transports them home, and helps put the groceries away. The scope of this care is unique to The CareGivers. It builds lifetime relationships that make a remarkable difference in the quality of life for so many people.

Without Joe, Tom could not live independently, for he is legally blind. But Joe gives him the extra set of eyes he needs to go shopping. Being blind is a major handicap in today's mobile society but Joe brings Tom that missing mobility.

Tom is still able to complete his errands, take part in shopping, and, most importantly, remain independent. With Joe's helping hand, Tom is able to live a good life while legally blind. Over the years these two men of similar ages have built a long-lasting friendship that goes far beyond volunteer and recipient. It is this caring relationship that is the essence of The CareGivers.
